

"The Kumsusan Palace of the Sun is not merely a product of the architectural art but a grand monumental edifice dedicated to the immortality of the leaders, born of the pure loyalty and the noble sense of moral obligation of our Party, our army and our people, and a sacred place of the revolution infused with the sincere devotion of the service personnel and the people from across the country."

Kim Jong Un

In the Mt Kumsu area of Pyongyang, the capital of the DPRK, is the Kumsusan Palace of the Sun where President Kim Il Sung and Chairman Kim Jong Il, whom the Korean nation acclaimed for the first time in its history spanning thousands of years, are preserved in their lifetime appearances.

The palace, ranging from its every column inside to every tree and every blade of grass outside, evokes the feeling of the days when the peerlessly great men were alive, and it represents the strong yearning of all the people for them and their loyalty to them.

That the Korean people call it the sacred place of the sun is because the great leaders, who performed undying exploits for their country and nation, the history and mankind, lie in state there.

President Kim Il Sung authored the immortal Juche idea and opened a new road of the revolution in which the masses of the people shape their destiny independently and creatively as masters of their own destiny. Chairman Kim Jong Il conducted energetic ideological and theoretical activities, systematizing the Juche idea in a comprehensive way and developing the Juche idea and the Songun idea, thus making them impeccable ideas guiding the era of independence. They were both outstanding thinkers and theoreticians and geniuses of the revolution and construction, born of the century.

Kim Il Sung, founding father of socialist Korea and eternal President of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, founded the glorious Workers' Party of Korea, the DPRK and the invincible Korean People's Army, brought the two stages of social revolution to successful completion and stepped up socialist construction, thus building socialism of Korean style on this land, where exploitation and oppression have been eliminated and where people are masters of everything and everything serves them.

Kim Jong II, eternal General Secretary of the Workers' Party of Korea and eternal Chairman of the DPRK National Defence Commission, developed it into an ever-victorious and motherly party, and defended the Juche-oriented socialism reliably and enhanced its prestige amid the worldwide political upheavals, by dint of his original Songun-based revolutionary leadership.

Regarding it as their lifelong motto to believe in people as in heaven, President Kim Il Sung and Chairman Kim Jong Il administered politics of loving people and turned the Korean society into a large family, a great flower garden based on single-hearted unity, where the leader and the people have forged blood-sealed ties like those between a father and his children.

President Kim Il Sung and Chairman Kim Jong Il devoted their lifelong efforts to realizing the independent and peaceful reunification of the nation and the cause of global independence.

Out of great magnanimity and humanity they embraced all the Korean compatriots who loved their country and nation and established friendly relations with party and state leaders and numerous personages of political, social and academic circles of many countries who aspired after independence. The Kumsusan Palace of the Sun still tells of their revolutionary activities.

President Kim Il Sung and Chairman Kim Jong Il, who devoted their all entirely to their country, revolution and people, were peerless patriots, great revolutionaries and benevolent fathers of the people, and as such they will live for ever as the sun of Juche Korea along with their undying exploits.

This is why the palace of the sun is regarded as a beacon of light for the Korean revolution, an everlasting spiritual mainstay of the Korean people and the supreme sanctuary of Juche symbolic of their victory.

The palace of the sun resplendent with the sacred history of the revolutionary activities of the peerlessly great men and overflowing with the fervent loyalty of the Workers' Party of Korea and all the people, has been laid out splendidly as befits a crystallization of the cause of immortality of the leaders.

Entering the hall of the palace, visitors can see the statues of President Kim Il Sung and Chairman Kim Jong Il.

In the palace there are rooms which exhibit orders, medals and honorary title certificates the great leaders received from scores of countries and many international organizations, as well as the DPRK, for the imperishable exploits they performed for the liberation and prosperity of the country and the cause of global independence.

The carriages, cars, battery car and boat used by them and preserved in their original state tell of the tireless devotion and painstaking efforts they made to bring happiness to the people and defend it, always finding themselves among the people.

There is the Hall of Lamentation that graphically portrays the Korean and world progressive peoples lamenting the sudden death of the great leaders, shedding tears of blood at their biers.

Some 200 photos hanging in such places as the hall in front of the lifts and corridors show the revolutionary careers of the great leaders; these photos and the melodies ringing dimly there give visitors an unshakeable belief that the revolutionary careers of the great leaders still go on and they will always be with their dear country and beloved people. Indeed, they exert a strong and lingering effect on visitors.

The exterior of the palace is laid out in a neat and dignified fashion with the plaza, on whose façade portraits of the beaming images of the great leaders are hanging, as the centre.

On national holidays and other major occasions important national political events are held here in grand style.

The plaza park, with splendid fountains with sculptures on both sides of the flowerbed, benches of different shapes, pergolas and gardens, is always full of visitors to the palace.

The arboretum, Paekhwa Garden and vineyard by the moat, where water runs telling meaningful stories, present beautiful scenery.

Indeed, the palace represents the utmost sincerity, ennobling sense of moral obligation and fervent loyalty of the Workers' Party of Korea and the Korean people, a crystallization of the cause of immortality of their leaders.

As Kim Jong Un, who is one and the same with the great leaders in ideology, leadership ability and virtues, leads the DPRK, the country of the sun, the Kumsusan Palace of the Sun will shine as the most sacred, purest and greatest accomplishment of the cause of immortality.

This boat was launched on June 15, Juche 67 (1978). For the subsequent 30-odd years Chairman Kim Jong Il, by using this boat, inspected units of the Korean People's Army and different national economic sectors on 517 occasions and conducted external activities on nine occasions, travelling 34 488 km (1 036 hours onboard) in his lifetime, propelling the Songun revolution along the road of victory with the helm of the revolution in his hands, against the tribulations of history.

The Korean people will never forget the patriotic devotion with which he travelled across the rough sea with a do-or-die spirit to inspect island-defending army units even in biting cold.

Before this carriage the Korean people feel their hearts rending and hot tears rolling down as Chairman Kim Jong Il passed away in it on his way for field guidance for his beloved people. Regarding it as his home and office, he travelled in this carriage, rain or shine, on the forced march of the Songun revolution.

On display in this carriage are a parka he wore shouldering the destiny of his country and people and their bright future, a pair of sunglasses he always put on because of his accumulated fatigue, his threadbare gloves and the documents he went over and signed on the last day of his life.

Hall of Lamentation

The Hall of Lamentation tells of the grief and great loss the Korean and world progressive peoples felt for the sudden death of President Kim Il Sung and Chairman Kim Jong Il.

As they had been fascinated by the great leaders' outstanding ideology and ennobling personality, they cried in bitter tears, calling them loudly. It seems that their wails of grief are still heard in this hall.
