P. Polenov at Nizhne-Saldinsk Plant in the 1870's; this method, later known as the "Russian Bessemer Method," differed from previous methods by enabling steel to be produced from cast-iron with a low silicon and manganese content; 1908 was the first to apply the laws of physical chemistry (law of balanced state of a system, depending on temperature changes and the law of mass activity) to explain the processes in an Bessemer converter and in the steel bath of an open-hearth furnace; 1910 introduced calculation theory for flame furnaces applying hydraulic laws to the motion of flue gases; the motion of a flame in air he compared to the motion of a light liquid in heavy liquid; together with I. G. Yes'man furnished a means of calculating the "height of the gas fountain" and the "gaseous flux" in furnaces; his hydraulic calculation method for flame furnaces was the first attempt to devise a gen sci method of furnace calculation; at one time this method was widely used in Russia and abroad and stimulated the further development of metallurgical furnace construction theory; by studying the properties of refractory materials, especially dinas bricks, developed "theory of dinas regeneration" which is still the basis of dinas production technol; his work Prokatka i kalibrovka (Rolling and Gaging) was the first attempt to explain gaging methods which had been a trade secret; directed design of various heating furnaces: for heating ingots before rolling; forging furnaces for thermal treatment of metals; drying, annealing and open-hearth furnaces; his work Plamennyye pechi (Flame Furnaces) (1925) summarized his methods of designing ind furnaces and introduced a number of original designs for various furnaces; Publ: Plamennyye pechi (Flame Furnaces) (5 vol, 1925); Proizvodstvo stali (Steel Production) (1925); Prokatka i kalibrovka (Rolling and Gaging) (1933); Sobraniye trudov (Collected Works) (1949); Died: 30 Oct 1928.

LENIN (real name: UL'YANOV; other pseudonyms: K.LENIN; V. IL'IN; KARPOV, etc), Vladimir Il'ich (1870-1924) Revolutionary; Bolshevik theoretician; founder and leader, Communist Party (Bolsheviks) and Comintern; organizer of 1917 Oct Revol in Russian; founder of Sov Union; Born: 22 Apr 1870 in Simbirsk; son of IT. N. Ul'yanov, Simbirsk Province college inspector who received patent of nobility; brother of Aleksandr Ul'yanov, member of People's Will Party, executed 1887 for attempted assassination of Alexander III; Educ: 1887 grad Simbirsk high school; 1891 passed external examinations for Law Fac, Petersburg Univ; Career: 1887 arrested for attending illegal student gathering, expelled from Kazan' Univ and deported from Kazan' by police; settled on his mother's estate in vil Kokushkino, Kazan' Province, but was barred from attending univ; from 1889 lived with his family in Samara; from 1891 asst to public notary; active in secret People's Will circles; Aug 1893 moved to Petersburg and established contacts with technol students' Marxist circle and with Marxist workers; began revol work in Petersburg workers' circles and published articles attacking opponents of Marxism; Apr 1895 went abroad and established contacts with Plekhanov's Liberation of Labor group; after receiving instructions, returned to Petersburg, then visited Vilnius, where he met the Soc-Democrat L. Martov, exiled there and working for the Bund; fall 1895 sponsored foundation in Petersburg of League for the Liberation of the Working Class; shortly afterwards arrested and imprisoned together with other leaders of this org; Feb 1897 exiled for three years to Siberia, to vil Shushenskoye, Minusinsk Okrug; meanwhile, 1898 illegal Soc-Democratic party RSDRP emerged in Russia, with wich Lenin allied himself; July 1900-Nov 1905 in Zurich, Munich, London and Geneva; in Geneva, together with Plekhanov, Martov, Zasulich, Aksel'rod and Potresov, published newspaper "Iskra"; Nov 1905-Aug 1906 lived in Petersburg, directing CC of RSDSRP's Bolshevik faction and directing publ of newspapers "Vperyod", "Proletariy" and "Novaya zhizn"; played no particular part in 1905-07 Revol; summer 1906 moved to Finland; Dec 1907 went abroad and until Apr 1917 lived in Paris, Cracow and Switzerland; campaigned actively against Mensheviks, Bolshevik "opportunists", West European socialists and supporters of Kautsky; with the latter he differed regarding the attitude to war and the "conversion of imperialistic wars into civil wars"; the polemic culminated in his speeches at the 1915 Zimmerwald and 1916 Kienthal Socialist Conferences; contemplated breaking with 2nd International and forming his own 3rd Communist International; developed theory of "imperialism as the last, decaying stage of capitalism" and the possibility of the victory of "socialist revolution" and the building of socialism first in one country - Russia-which, though econ backward, represented the weakest link in the gen system of capitalism as regards "socialist" transformation of Russia, he excluded any cooperation with Soc-Democrats and Socialist-Revolutionaries, preferring to rely for support on the factionalized "petty bourgeois element" to the point of forming a provisional govt with it; 16 Apr 1917, with the assistance of the German authorities, returned to Petersburg and in his "April Theses" publicly announced a program for a Bolshevik coup d'etat; put an end to cooperation of some Bolsheviks with Mensheviks and Socialist-Revolutionaries, which had developed since 1917 Feb Revol; led Bolsheviks to adopt an opposition stand and undermine Provisional Govt and the Soviets; late June and early July 1917 Bolsheviks made an abortive bid to seize power; to evade arrest and trial Lenin went into hiding and was smuggled to Finland; since the Soviets had refused to support the Bolsheviks in their attempted coup, Lenin struck the former slogan "All Power to the Soviets" form his program and concentrated entirely on preparing an armed uprising and seizing power by conspiratorial means; when a majority of the RSDRP(B) CC objected to this, Lenin threatened to break away from them and appeal to the Baltic Fleet sailors for help; however, agreed to postpone armed uprising until opening of 2nd Congress of Soviets; situation in Russian at this time was extremely critical: demands for an end to the war came from the soldiery, demoralized by mil routs and setbacks, by Bolshevik defeatist propaganda, by the provisional Government's vacillating war-or-peace policy and by the org of the armed forces and mil discipline; the non-Russian peoples demanded a solution of the nationality problem; however, the provisional Govt postponed action on all these problems until the convening of the Constituent Assembly, elections to which were delayed; Lenin made use of all this, demagogically promising to end the war, give the peasants land, grant the non-Russian peoples selfdetermination up to and including secession from Russia, turn factories and plants over to the workers and grant the gen public the full range of polit and civil rights; in addition to this, in connection with Gen Kornilov's bid to establish an authoritarian regime in Petrograd, the Provisional Govt freed arrested Bolshevik leaders and allowed the Bolsheviks to muster their own armed formations; as a result, the Bolsheviks, under Lenin's leadership, carried off the Oct Revolt and coup d'etat very easily; Lenin headed the new Sov govt as chm, Council of Pop Comr; the Constituent Assembly; convened in Jan 1918, refused to recognize the new regime since the Bolsheviks constituted a minority in the Assembly; the Assembly was therefore dispersed by force; non-Bolshevik polit parties were banned and their leaders arrested; the non-Bolshevik press, or any freedom of speech, was also banned; the Cheka terror began; the Bolsheviks claimed to solve the agrarian problem by establishing communes on lands confiscated from the large landowners; earlier promises of self-determination for the non-Russian peoples remained a fiction; in this setting there began the protracted Civil War; 30 Aug 1918 Lenin was shot and wounded by a woman, the Socialist-Revolutionary F. Kaplan; the anti-Bolshevik forces were decimated, divided and feuded among themselves; the Whitist movement, supported by the Entente, was headed by generals who alienated from their cause the more progressive elements, the non-Russian peoples and the gen mass of workers and peasants by their unmitigated militarism; on the other hand, the policies of the German occupation forces, and then the Polish forces in Bel and the Ukr prompted much of the population in these areas to swing behind the Bolsheviks; the Bolsheviks were aided by their demagogic promises of freedom and a rosy future, by fomenting the poorer peasants' hatred of the more well-to-do and utilizing this hatred for their own polit ends; Lenin and his followers finally emerged the victors from the Civil War, but the country was increasingly discontented with "war communism", and the raging Cheka terror; in 1921 the Kronstadt sailors' garrison revolted with the slogan "The Soviets Without the Bolsheviks!"; the situation compelled Lenin to abandon "war communism" and adopt his famous "new economic policy" - NEP, for short; he also prepared the first mass purge of his own party - the RCP(B), on the pretext of countering the "Workers' Opposition", the "Democratic Centralists" and other opposition groups within the Party; his aim was to weed out all opposition, establish iron discipline and bring Party rank-and-file fully under the control of the CC; Mar 1919 Lenin founded the 3rd Communist International (Comintern) and drew up rules for admission to the Comintern, its program and its tactics; its prime task was not to combat capitalism but to counter the socialist parties in the European countries; furthermore, the Comintern was to support Sov Russia and defend its polit and econ interests in the int forum; Lenin left a huge literary legacy; his main achievement in the theory and practice of so-called "scientific Communism" was to found "a new type of party", without which it is allegedly impossible to proceed from capitalism to socialism; in Marxist theory he is considered the "loyalest" disciple of Marx and the founder of a new body of teaching - Marxism-Leninism - which, to use the CPSU CC definition, "creatively developed Marxism" and raised it to new heights; May 1922 Lenin became seriously ill with cerebral vascular sclerosis; Mar 1923 suffered a second stroke, as a result of which he lost the power of speech and was even more paralysed throughout the right side of his body; Died: 21 Jan 1924 at Gorki, near Moscow; his embalmed body is displayed in the specially built Mausoleum on Moscow's Red Square; innumerable towns, factories, plants, institutions and organizations are named for him.

- who had crashed in the Anadyr distr; Feb 1934 flew to USA to organize Alaskan rescue operation for members of icebreaker "Chelyuskin" expedition; hence flew in very bad conditions via Fairbanks, Nome, Wellen to Vancarem; at 7th Congress of Soviets elected member, USSR Centr Exec Comt, Sept 1936 flew 19,000 km from Los Angeles to Moscow; after returning from America continued to work for polar aviation; early 1937 prepared for non-stop Moscow-US flight over North Pole; 12 Aug 1937 captained 4-engine N-209 plane which set off from Moscow for America; the flight encountered exceptionally bad weather; over the Barents Sea the plane ran into continuous cloud, which forced it to fly at an altitude of over 6,000 meters; approaching the North Pole strong winds cut the plane's ground speed to just over 160 km/hr; 13 Aug 1937 the plane passed over the North Pole and headed for Alaska; this marked the start of the most difficult navigational stage of the flight - 2,187 km from the North Pole to the Alaskan coast; around 2 a.m. Levanevskiy radioed that one of his engines was out of action as a result of a faulty oil lead; after this steady radio contact with the plane was lost; the few scraps of radio messages subsequently received indicate that Levanevskiy continued for a while on three engines; then the situation worsened and the plane was forced to descend into the cloud, resulting in icing-up of the plane's surfaces and an attempted forced landing on the ice; rescue efforts were immediately made by both Sov and American polar pilots, but no trace of Levanevskiy or the plane was found; Awards: Hero of the Sov Union (1934); Order of the Red Star (1933); Order of the Red Banner of Labor (1936); Died: 1937 following a plane crash in the Arctic.
