Preface

The Institute for the Study of the USSR now has over thirteen years of experience in compiling and publishing biographies of outstanding persons in the Soviet Union. During this time, it has accumulated detailed biographical information on more than 136,000 Soviet citizens. Its research facilities, including a library of some 80,000 volumes and a collection of over 750 Soviet newspapers and periodicals, have made this immense undertaking possible.

Since the project was initiated, the Institute has produced the following series of reference works: Biographic Directory of the USSR, The Scarecrow Press, Inc., 1958; Who's Who in the USSR 1961–1962, International Book and Publishing Co. Ltd., 1962; Who's Who in the USSR 1965–1966, International Book and Publishing Co. Ltd., 1966 (Second Edition); Prominent Personalities in the USSR, The Scarecrow Press, Inc., 1968; Party and Government Officials of the Soviet Union 1917–1967, The Scarecrow Press, Inc., 1969; The Soviet Diplomatic Corps 1917–1967, The Scarecrow Press, Inc., 1970; Soviet Science 1917–1970. Part I: Academy of Sciences of the USSR, The Scarecrow Press, Inc., 1971.

Interest shown in these publications by research workers, editors, journalists, politicians and state officials all over the world continues to grow. In collated and easily accessible form these reference works furnish the fullest and most accurate data available on the better known Soviet Party and government officials, the scientific and cultural personalities of the USSR, Party, state and scientific establishments, and so forth. Such data is not to be found in corresponding Soviet reference works and encyclopedias, which present the additional obstacle that they are written in Russian.

The present book, named Who Was Who in the USSR, is the eighth reference work in this series. By its nature and purpose it differs somewhat from previous biographical manuals in that it deals with persons no longer living. Moreover, it includes a certain number of biographies of people who actively campaigned against the Soviet regime or were later exiled or put to death by the Soviet authorities. The reference work covers the period from 1917 to 1967 and contains 5,015 biographies of prominent individuals who have made major contributions to the political, intellectual, scientific, social and economic life of the country.

- BELOPOL'SKIY, Aristarkh Apollonovich (1854-1934) Russian astronomer and astrophysicist; Dr of Astronomy from 1896; astrophysicist, Pulkovo Observatory from 1891; member, Russian (then USSR) Acad of Sci from 1903; Born: 13 July 1854 in Moscow; Educ: 1877 grad Dept of Physics and Mathematics, Moscow Univ; Career: 1879-88 asst, Moscow Observatory; 1888-1934 adjunct, from 1891 astrophysicist, 1917-19 dir, Pulkovo Observatory; chm, Russian Branch, Int Union for Solar Research; at Pulkovo he studied rotation of Sun from motion of solar flares and by measuring numerous photographs of Sun taken at Pulkovo from 1881 to 1888; studied radial velocity of celestial bodies; 1895 used measurement of radial velocity to study structure of rings of Saturn and showed that they consist of a mass of tiny satellites orbiting the planet according to Kepler's Third Law; determined radial velocity of some 200 stars of 2 1/2-4th magnitude in order to plot motion of Sun and examine spectra of variable stars; discovered that periodic variation in radial velocity of Cepheid equals variation in their brilliance and established that maximum brilliance coincided in time with maximum velocity of the star's approach to the Sun; concluded that this variation in radial velocity stemmed from motion of one of the components of a binary star around the center of gravity of the pair; discovered same phenomenon in another Cepheid, η Aquila, and subsequently it was found in all Cepheids; also discovered velocity variations in Algol, β Lyra, Polaris the α Canes Venatici and other stars; did not restrict himself to one set of observations but repeated them several times; for instance, with ρ Cepheus from 1894 through 1914, and noted variations in their radial velocity graph and also in the intensity and width of individual lines of the spectrum; determined the radial velocity of the individual components of the binary stars γ Virgo and γ Leo; dissatisfied with the proofs of the Doppler Effect based on observing the radial velocity of stars, he constructed an ingenious device for its laboratory proof; this consisted of mirrors attached to the rim of wheels rapidly rotating toward each other; the reflection of light from the moving mirrors produced the same spectral shift, as though the light source itself had shifted; this proof was constructed without any kind of theoretical basis but proved of crucial significance and placed astrophysics on a firm foundation; with the aid of a stellar spectrograph he also tried to study the rotation of the Sun; in 1912 he ordered a special instrument for this which, however, was only delivered in 1923; with its aid he began to photograph the spectra of the edge of the Sun according to a plan adopted at meetings of the Int Union for Solar Research; in these studies he noticed that the speed of rotation of the Sun diminished slightly between 1925 and 1933, which was also confirmed longation of Life) (1938); Otyok (Edema); Arterial'naya gipertoniya (Arterial Hypertony); Rukovodstvo po patologicheskoy fiziologii (A Manual of Pathological Physiology) (3 vol, 1941), etc; Awards: two Orders of Lenin; Order of the Great Fatherland War, 1st Class; Order of the Red Banner of Labor; Stalin Prize (1941); medals; Died: 19 July 1946.

BOGORAZ, Nikolay Alekseyevich (1874-1952) Surgeon; specialist in restorative surgery; Dr of Med from 1909; prof from 1912; Hon Sci Worker of RSFSR from 1936; Born: 13 Feb 1874 in Tiflis; Educ: 1897 grad with distinction Petersburg Mil Med Acad; Career: 1897-1906 gen practitioner; 1906-09 asst prof, 1909-12 assoc prof, Chair of Surgery, Med Fac, Tomsk Univ; 1912-18 prof, Chair of Hospital Surgery, Warsaw Univ, which was later transferred to Rostov-on-Don; 1918-41 head, Chair of Hospital Surgery, Med Fac, Rostov-on-Don Univ, which was later enlarged to become the Rostov Med Inst; 1941-43 surgeon with evacuation hospitals in Tashkent; 1943-52 head, Chair of Fac Surgery, 2nd Moscow Med Inst; 1944-47 consultant, 1947-52 first surgeon, Burdenko Communist (now Main Mil) Hospital, Moscow; founded influential school of surgery; devised new methods of vessel suturing, operative alterations of the extremities, and the transplantation and restoration of functioning organs; 1912 devised artery-vein suture in gangrene of the extremities; 1913 devised suture of the mesenteric artery to the inferior vena cava to circumvent the liver in cirrhosis; 1925 proposed method of anastomosis of the gall bladder and stomach in ulcerous diseases; 1925 also devised method of lengthening the extremities; 1930 devised method of "replanting" the lower and upper extremities on vessel and nerve tracts; 1936 developed techniques of implanting thyroid and pituitary glands in dwarves to increase their height by 8-16 centimeters and of restoring the penis with Filatov's stem and strips of cartilage; chm, Rostov and Tashkent Sci Surgical Soc; ed, various med journals; a man of great personal courage, he continued his surgical and teaching career even after the loss of both legs; wrote over 100 works on gen, field, restorative, bone and vascular surgery, traumatology, etc; his works include several important manuals and monographs; Publ: doctor's thesis O chatnykh amputatsiyakh stopy v funktsional'nom otnoshenii (Partial Amputation of the Foot from the Functional Viewpoint) (1909); K khirurgii pishchevoda (Surgery of the Oesophagus) (1911); Povrezhdeniya i zabolevaniya lokteвого sustava i predplech'ya (Lesions and Diseases of the Elbow Joint and the Forearm) (1914); O kostnoy plastike melkimi chastyami kostey (Osteoplasty with Small Pieces of Bone) (1926); Lektsii po klinicheskoy khirurgii (Lectures on Clinical Surgery) (1935); Vosstanovitel'naya khirurgiya (Restorative Surgery) (2 vol, 2nd ed, 1940-48); Awards: Stalin Prize, 1st Class (1950); Died: 15 July 1952.

BOGORAZ-TAN (real name: BOGORAZ), Vladimir Germanovich (1865-1936) Russian Jewish ethnographer, writer, folklorist, philologist and public figure; Born: 27 Apr 1865 in Ovruch, Volhynian Province; Educ: studied at Petersburg Univ; Career: 1880, on arrival in Petersburg, joined Populist Revolutionaries; 1886-89 imprisoned in Peter and Paul Fortress; began sci career in 1890's at Kolyma, whither he was exiled in 1889 for membership of People's Will Party; 1894-96 and 1900-01 participated in expeditions to study peoples of Far Northeast, especially the Chukchi; helped compile orthography for peoples of North; wrote fundamental works on ethnography and folklore of peoples of Northeast Asia; wrote textbooks, dictionaries and grammars of Chukchi language; from 1918 employed at Museum of Anthropology and Ethnography, USSR Acad of Sci; from 1921 prof of ethnography, Geographical Inst, later Leningrad Univ and other higher educ establishments; helped form Comt for North, Presidium of All-Union Centr Exec Comt and Inst of Peoples of the North; founder, and from 1932 dir, Museum of History of Religion, USSR Acad of Sci; Publ: poems Kolymskiye motivy (Kolyma Motifs) (1896); study Krivotnogi (Crooknose) (1896); Chukotskiye rasskazy (Chukotsk Tales) (1899); Vosem' plemyon (Eight Tribes) (1902); Zhertva drakona (The Dragon's Victim) (1909); Sobraniye sochineniy (Collected Works) (1911); Kolymskiye rasskazy (Kolyma Tales) (1931); novel Soyuz molodykh (League of the Young) (1934); novel Voskressheye plemya (The Resurrected Tribe) (1935); poems: "Song," "The First of May," Tsushima, "Song Before Death," etc; research works: Materialy po izucheniyu chukotskogo yazyka i fol'klor (Materials on the Study of the Chukchi Language and Folklore) (1900); Oblastnoy slovar' Kolymского russkogo narechiya (A Lexicon of the Kolyma Russian Dialect) (1901); Novyye zadachi russkoy etnografii v polyarnykh oblastyakh (New Tasks for Russian Ethnography in the Polar Areas) (1921); Obnovlennaya derevnya (The Renewed Village) (1925); Yevreyskoye mestechko (The Jewish Township) (1926); Komsomol v derevne (The Komsomol in the Countryside) (1926); monograph Chukchi (The Chukchi) (1934), etc; Died: 10 May 1936.

BOGORODITSKIY, Nikolay Petrovich (1902-1967) Electr eng; Dr of Tech Sci from 1940; prof and rector, Leningrad Electr Eng Inst from 1954; CP member from 1948; Born: 20 May 1902 in Tashkent; Educ: 1929 grad Leningrad Polytech Inst; Career: 1930-37 instructor, Leningrad Polytech Inst; 1933-42 instructor, Budyonnyy Mil Electrotech Acad, Leningrad; 1935-42 instructor, later assoc prof, Leningrad Electrotech Inst; during war managed large factory laboratory; from 1945 prof and head, Dept of Electrotech Materials, Leningrad Electr Eng Inst; 1949 at same inst organized and headed new Dept of Dielectrics and Semiconductors, which he directed until his death; also directed in this dept Experimental Laboratory of Electrophysical Processes in Dielectrics and Semiconductors which was founded on his initiative in 1956; 1949-54 pro-rector (for research), from 1954 rector, Leningrad Electr Eng Inst; for a long time senior sci worker, Mathematics Inst, USSR Acad of Sci; did research on physical nature of dielectric loss in various types of electric insulating materials and development of new low-loss materials; 1933-42 developed first Sov radio ceramic materials such as ticond, micalex, high-frequency glass, radio porcelain and ultra-porcelain which have found wide ind use; during his last years various major research projects were conducted by his dept and experimental laboratory: development and study of dielectric amplifiers, high-voltage glass and ceramic compressed-gas condensers, etc; developed new semiconductor ceramics which led to wave-guide load absorbers of various wave-bands, ignitron igniters and nonlinear resistances; helped write textbooks for power eng and electr eng colleges and fac – Elektrotekhnicheskiye materialy (Electrotechnical Materials); Teoriya dielektrikov (Theory of Dielectrics); Materialy v radioelektronike (Materials in Radio Electronics); member, Leningrad City and Oblast CPSU Comt; Publ: Izoliruyushchiye materialy dlya tekhniki vysokikh chastot (Insulating Materials for High-Frequency Equipment) (1937); Vysokochastotnyye dielektriki (High-Frequency Dielectrics) (1938); ed, Rukovodstvo k laboratornym zanyatiyam po elektroizoliruyushchim materialam (Guide to Laboratory Work on Electric Insulating Materials) (1946); coauthor, Vysokochastotnyye neorganicheskiye dielektriki (High-Frequency Inorganic Dielectrics) (1948); coauthor, Elektrofizicheskiye osnovy vysokochastotnoy keramiki (Electro-Physical Principles of High-Frequency Ceramics) (1958); Awards: three Stalin Prizes (1942, 1952); Order of Lenin; Order of the Red Banner of Labor (1961); Badge of Honor; medals; Died: 19 June 1967 after a long illness.

BOGORODITSKIY, Vasilii Alekseyevich (1857-1941) Linguist; Dr of philology; prof; corresp member, Russian (then USSR) Acad of Sci from 1915; Born: 6 Apr 1857; Educ: 1879 grad Kazan' Univ; Career: 1881-88 lecturer, from 1888 prof, Kazan' Univ, later Kazan' Teachers' Training Inst; pupil of Bodyen de Kurtene; Kazan' linguistic school; worked on gen linguistics, phonetics, comparative historical grammar of Indo-European languages, Russian language and Turkic linguistics; at Kazan' Univ founded Russia's first experimental phonetics laboratory; applied experimental phonetic method to study of rhythm of Russian verse; Publ: Glasnyye bez udareniya v obshcherusskom yazyke (Unstressed Vowels in Common Russian) (1884); Ocherki po yazykovedeniyu i russkomu yazyku (An Outline of Linguistics and the Russian Language) (1901); Obshchiy kurs russkoy grammatiki (A General Course of Russian Grammar) (1904); Lektsii po obshchemu yazykovedeniyu (Lectures in General Linguistics) (1911); Kratkiy ocherk sravnitel'noy grammatiki ario-yevropeyskikh yazykov (A Brief Outline on Comparative Grammar of the Indo-European Languages) (1916); Kurs eksperimental'noy fonetiki primenitel'no k literaturnomu russkomu proiznosheniyu (A Course of Experimental Phonetics Applied to Literary Russian Pronunciation) (3 vol, 1917-22); Russkaya grammatika (Russian Grammar) (1918); Zakony singarmonizma v tyurskikh yazykakh (Laws of Synharmonism in the Turkic Languages) (1927); Fonetika russkogo yazyka v svete eksperimental'nykh dannykh (Phonetics of the Russian Language in the Light of Experimental Data) (1930); Etyudy po tatarskomu i tyurskomu yazykoznaniyu (Studies in Tatar and Turkic

- Linguistics) (1933); Vvedeniye v tatarskoye yazykoznanie v svyazi s drugimi tyurskimi yazykami (An Introduction to Tatar Linguistics in Connection with Other Turkic Languages) (1934); Vvedeniye v izucheniye sovremennykh romanskikh i germanskikh yazykov (An Introduction to the Study of Contemporary Romance and Germanic Languages) (1953); Died: 22 Dec 1941.
- BOGORODSKIY, Aleksey Yakovlevich (1870-1944) Physicochemist; Born: 8 Nov 1870; Educ: 1894 grad Kazan' Univ; Career: from 1912 prof, Kazan' Univ; from 1929 prof, Kazan' Chemical Technol Inst; 1895 demonstrated that cryohydrates, until then regarded as specific chemical compounds, were actually mech mixtures of crystals of ice and salts; made first systematic study of the electrolysis and electr conductivity of molten salts; determined the aqueous solution temperature of various salts and the thermal capacity of solutions; Publ: master's thesis Materialy po elektrokhimii neorganicheskikh soyedineniy v tak nazyvayemom ognennozhidkom sostoyanii (Material on the Electrochemistry of Inorganic Compounds in a So-Called Fiery-Liquid State) (1905), etc; Died: 1944.
- BOGORODSKIY, Fyodor Semyonovich (1895-1959) Painter; Hon Art Worker of RSFSR from 1946; corresp member, USSR Acad of Art from 1947; prof from 1938; CP member from 1917; Born: 21 May 1895 in Nizhniy Novgorod; Educ: 1922-24 studied at Higher State Art Tech Workshops; Career: 1916-18 seaman, mil pilot; from 1918 chm, Dept for Special Affairs, Cheka; then worked for Nizhniy-Novgorod Province Cheka; as comr of naval flotilla badly concussed in fighting at Tsaritsyn; then head, Special Dept, Orenburg Province Cheka; from 1920 again with Nizhniy Novgorod Cheka; then head, Investigation Dept, Revol Mil Tribunal of Volga Oblast; from 1922 chm, Art Workers' Union; from 1924 Council member, Assoc of Artists of Revol Russia; 1928-30 in Austria, Germany and Italy; for a while lived and worked with Gorky in Sorrento; during WW 2 war artist in besieged Stalingrad, in Leningrad and in Hungary; from 1938 lecturer, Art Dept, State Inst of Cinematography; one of organizers of this inst; Works: series "Waifs and Strays" (1925); "Sailors in Ambush" (1927); "Portrait of Gorky" (1931); "Portrait of a Fisherman's Daughter" (1930); "Construction of a Bridge in Gorky" (1931); "Little Brother" (1932); "Hail to Fallen Heroes" (1945), etc; also painted landscapes and still-lives; many of his works are hung in Sov museums, including the Tret'yakov Gallery in Moscow; Awards: Order of the Red Banner of Labor; Stalin Prize (1946); Died: 3 Feb 1959.
- BOGOSLOVSKIY, Mikhail Mikhaylovich (1867-1929) Historian; Dr of History from 1909; prof; member, USSR Acad of Sci from 1921; Born: 13 Mar 1867; Educ: 1891 grad History and Philological Fac, Moscow Univ; Career: from 1898 lecturer, 1911-25 prof, Moscow Univ; secr, Moscow Soc of History and Russian Antiquities; chm, Russian Historical Soc; later chm, Russian History Section, Inst of History; pupil and rep, V. O. Klyuchevskiy's historical school and his successor as head of Dept of Russian history, Moscow Univ; specialized in 18th-century Russian history; author of detailed, scholarly biography of Peter I; works notable for thorough analysis of historical sources and wealth of facts; Publ: Oblastnaya reforma Petra Velikogo. Provinciya 1719-27 godov (Peter the Great's Regional Reform. The Provinces in 1719-27) (1902); Zemskoye samoupravleniye na russkom severe v XVIII v. (Zemstvo Self-Government in the Russian North in the 18th Century) (2 vol, 1909-12); Konstitutsionnoye dvizheniye 1730 g. (The 1730 Constitutional Movement) (1906); Pyotr Velikiy i yego reforma (Peter the Great and His Reform) (1920); Administrativnyye preobrazovaniya Petra Velikogo v 1699-1700 gg. (Peter the Great's Administrative Changes of 1699-1700) (2 vol, 1928-29); *Pyotr I. Du Bois Reymond; 1886-92 prof of physiological chemistry, Khar'kov Univ; 1892-1906 prof, 1906-10 dir, Petersburg Mil Med Acad; founded first Russian school of biochemistry; established chairs of physiological chemistry at Kazan' and Khar'kov univ and Petersburg Mil Med Acad; did research on the chemistry of digestion, protein chemistry and the physiology of the nervous system; while still a student did research on "Natural and Artificial Pancreatic Juices with Specific Functions," a subject on which he subsequently wrote his doctor's thesis; discovered the formation of plasteins from the reaction of abomasal ferment with the products of the peptic digestion of proteins; also studied gastric autodigestion, the content of antiferments in the intestinal wall, the nature of muscle protein and the chemical composition of the haptogenous membrane of milk globules; was first to obtain amilase and trypsin from the pancreas by selective absorption with colloidal particles; proved colloidal nature of ferments; proved experimentally that the reaction of pancreatic juice with proteins is a hydrolytic reaction as a result of which the proteins are converted into peptones; 1886 demonstrated reversibility of this process by synthesizing protein from peptones by fermentation; developed method of obtaining the basic muscle protein myosin; did research on liver, kidney and brain protein; proposed globulin-stromin-nuclein classification for protein components; devised first sci classification of brain proteins; 1888 devised original theory on structure of protein molecules; also studied relation of various protein components among themselves and to other substances in the cytoplasm of the living cell; 1901 detected presence of antipepsin and antitrypsin in the gastric and intestinal tissue which prevent autodigestion; 1888-1891, together with his brother, published first Russian physiology journal Fiziologicheskiiy sbornik; chm, Russian Army Food Review Commission; Publ: doctor's thesis O spetsificheskiiy deystvuyushchikh telakh natural'nogo i iskusstvennogo sokov podzheludochnoy zhelezy (Elements of Natural and Artificial Pancreatic Juices with Specific Functions) (1863); Ocherk organoplasticheskikh sil organizmov (A Study of the Organoplastic Powers of Organisms) (1886); Osnovnoye vechestvo protoplazmy i yego vidoizmeneniya zhizn'yu (The Basic Substance of Protoplasm and Its Modification by the Vital Process) (1894), etc; Died: 8 June 1923.

DANILEVSKIY, Vasilii Yakovlevich (1852-1939) Physiologist; member, Ukr Acad of Sci from 1926; Prof Emeritus of Ukr SSR from 1926; Hon Sci Worker of Ukr SSR; Born: 13 Jan 1852 in Khar'kov, son of a craftsman; Educ: 1874 grad Med Fac, Khar'kov Univ; Career: while still a student worked at Chair of Physiology, doing research on the biochemistry of tetanus, etc; 1874 presented famous paper on "The Influence of the Cerebrum on Respiration and Circulation"; 1876 expanded this paper into doctor's thesis, proving that moderate or weak electr stimulation of the cerebral cortex creates impulses not in the subcortical centers but in the cells of the cortex itself, which exerts a regulatory influence on respiration and circulation; worked in the laboratories of K. Ludwig and J. d'Arsonval, where he did research on the effect of anoxemia and asphyxia on the nervous system; 1904-05 demonstrated possibility of restoring the vagal stimulus by perfusion of the coronary vessels of the heart 24 hours or more after clinical death; 1876 performed first Russian experiments on recording electr phenomena in the cerebrum of a dog; 1891 published full results of these experiments, in which he demonstrated that perception of sensation during stimulation of the receptor is objectively recorded in the form of a negative fluctuation of current in cortex of cerebral hemispheres; 1879 by adjusting the strength and frequency of excitation of peripheral ending of a dog's vagus nerve, he demonstrated cumulative effect of inhibition of cardiac activity; was a pioneer of physiological research on hypnosis in animals and humans; 1881 interpreted hypnotism as the inhibition of the "voluntary" reflexes supported by the active state of the forebrain; explained the mechanism of "nervous asthma" and dyspnea in a series of experiments with frogs; founder, Ukr Inst of Labor; helped to set up ind production of endocrine drugs; from 1927 founder and life-dir, All-Ukr Inst of Endocrinology and Organotherapy; 1880-1906 prof of Physiology, Khar'kov Veterinary Inst; 1883-1909 and 1917-26 prof, Khar'kov Univ; 1917-26 prof, Khar'kov Med Inst; 1885-1896 wrote 25 papers on hemosporidia; wrote numerous works on blood parasites in birds, notably plasmodia, which he was the first to describe; 1888 published large monograph on comparative blood parasitology; was first to demonstrate that hemosporidia living on erythrocytes are widespread among host vertebrates; this provided proof of A. Laveran's hypothesis that parasites in human erythrocytes are the real agents of malaria; his research on blood parasites on birds yielded a model on the basis of which R. Ross proved that mosquitoes are the carriers of malaria; birds infected with plasmodia proved suitable for research on malaria and its chemotherapy; 1910, despite the opposition of the Min of Health, founded the Khar'kov Women's Med Inst, of which he was dir and also head, Chair of Physiology; wrote 217 works, including a three-vol physiology textbook; Publ: article "The Influence of the Cerebrum on Respiration and Circulation" (1875); doctor's thesis Issledovaniya po fiziologii golovnogo mozga (Research on the Physiology of the Cerebrum) (1876); O proiskhozhdenii muskul'noy sily (The Origin of Muscular Strength) (1876); O summirovaniu elektricheskikh razdrasheniuy myshits i dvigatel'nykh nervov (The Cumulation of Electrical
